

New! Writing Class at Unity . . .

WRITE WHERE YOU ARE: Explore Your World Through Writing

3 Thursday afternoons
September 16, 23 & 30
12:30 pm
UCIM Fireside Room
Fee: only $10 per session

Jo McReynolds-Blochowiak, presenter, is a lecturer, writer and “literary adventure tour guide” who teaches history, literature and creative writing. As a professional book discussion leader, Jo leads eight ongoing book discussion groups.

There are so many stories waiting to be told that only you can tell. Explore your world and express yourself by tapping into your unique material: your own experiences, the people you know and the places you’ve been. Or let writing take you any place you’d like to go.

In this class, you’ll learn more about forms your writing might take, including: memoir, poetry, creative nonfiction, personal essays and fiction. You may experiment with these forms. Or, you may focus on an individually chosen writing project. You’ll also learn about how to read like a writer, to connect with your literary lineage and expand your world.

Whether you are a beginner or a “old pro,” you’ll have a chance to explore your talent and chart your course as a writer – in the stimulating and encouraging company of other writers.
